Private Rocket Aims for Space

MOJAVE, CALIFORNIA | Aviation enthusiasts began gathering Sunday in the high desert in hopes of seeing the first flight into space by a privately developed, manned rocket.

An exotic jet-engined airplane named White Knight was set to take off early Monday morning from Mojave Airport carrying the rocket-propelled SpaceShipOne.

If SpaceShipOne is successful, designer Burt Rutan and his Scaled Composites development company will use the craft to make a run at the $10 million Ansari X Prize, a formal competition intended to spur commercial development of spaceflight.

Mike Melvill, 62, a veteran civilian test pilot and a vice president/general manager for Scaled Composites, will pilot the craft.

Once released from White Knight, Melvill, flying solo, is expected to ignite the rocket and pull up into an 80-second powered climb. After the rocket motor shuts down, the craft is to coast up to a target altitude of 62 miles above the Earth, then re-enter the atmosphere and glide to a landing back at Mojave.

Wind or clouds could force a postponement. JOHN ANTCAZAK (AP)

Saudi Aid Cited by Militants

Al Qaeda claims beheading plotters had military's help

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | The al Qaeda militants who captured and later beheaded American engineer Paul M. Johnson Jr. had help from sympathizers within the Saudi security forces, according to an account of the operation posted by the al Qaeda cell on an Islamic extremist Web site Sunday.

The sympathizers gave police uniforms to the militants, who then snatched Johnson at a fake checkpoint in the city, the posting said.

The account highlighted fears of some diplomats and Westerners in the kingdom that militants have infiltrated Saudi security forces, a possibility Saudi officials have denied.

Fahd

Saudi King Fahd vowed Sunday that militants in the kingdom would be stopped.

"The perpetrators of these attacks aimed at shaking stability and crippling security — and it is a far-fetched aim, God willing," he said in a speech to the advisory Shura Council. "We will not allow this destructive bunch, led by deviant thought, to harm the security of this nation or affect its stability."

Police cars and armored vehicles flooded the al-Malaz neighborhood in Riyadh on Sunday as security forces surrounded a house where suspected militants were believed to have taken refuge after a shootout with police.

The massive operation was under way in the same district that was the focus of a huge security sweep against militants sought in Johnson's beheading. His body still has not been found. SALAH NASRAWI (AP)

TRAVEL | Stopover A Northwest Airlines flight heading for Rapid City, S.D., landed a few miles off course Saturday — at Ellsworth Air Force Base — and passengers had to wait on board for more than three hours while the crew was interrogated. Passengers on

Flight 1152 expected to be welcomed to Rapid City Regional Airport. Instead, they were told to close their window shades and not look outside. Eventually, the captain and first officer were replaced for the short hop to the right airport. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

FESTIVALS

Biker Chick

In Washington, we have squirrels, rats and pigeons. But the omnipresent creatures in Key West, Fla., are chickens — and they were celebrated with a parade on Saturday. The "Poultry in Motion" parade was part of the four-day ChickenFest celebration to honor the birds that, by law, are allowed to roam freely throughout the islands. Most revelers cheered the chickens; but Sonja Jones, pictured here on her bicycle, decided to, well, be one. Her pet chicken, Henry, is riding in her bicycle's basket.

Bad Medicine

A doctor in Oregon City, Ore., will spend two months in jail after he advised a patient that having sex with him would help her pelvic pain, then billed the Oregon Health Plan for his time during their sessions. Dr. Randall J. Smith, 50, must also perform 200 hours of community service and pay $1,105 in fines as part of a plea agreement, officials told The Oregonian newspaper last week. The woman told officials that Smith told her massaging her "trigger points" would alleviate her pain. Smith told prosecutors that the sex was consensual. (AP)

Disorder in the Court

Warning from the Sheriff's Department: Don't show up for jury duty with a bad attitude. After making it through two days of jury selection in a criminal case, Ross Selkirk was picked Wednesday to sit on a panel in San Luis Obispo, Calif. Selkirk complained loudly and before taking his seat he banged his arm on the wooden railing of the jury box, court officials said. He then made an obscene gesture to a man in the courtroom, the Sheriff's Department alleged. After a bailiff told him several times to behave, Selkirk was arrested and booked for investigation of criminal contempt. (AP)

CONTESTS

Bring a Big Belly

There's a search on in Iowa and Illinois for the best belly flopper. It started over the weekend with six pools hosting a belly-flop contest. Top finishers at each pool will move on to compete in regional rounds. That will be followed by a competition between winners in Iowa and Illinois. Categories will be ages 9 and younger, 10 to 13 and 14 to 17. People older than 17 will compete in weight-based categories, organizers said. (AP)

Kerry Took Money From Arrested S. Korean Figure

John Kerry's presidential campaign collected a maximum $2,000 check from the recently arrested son of South Korea's disgraced former president. The Kerry campaign said it did not know about the $2,000 donation from Chun Jae-yong or his background until informed by The Associated Press and has decided to return the money to avoid any appearance of impropriety. Clinton Reflects On Top Regrets

Memoir lists national health plan, Mideast as disappointments

WASHINGTON | For Bill Clinton, his greatest failures as president have nothing to do with the scandal over his affair with a White House intern.

"I'm sorry on the home front that we didn't get health care and that we didn't reform Social Security," the former president told CBS' "60 Minutes" in an interview aired Sunday in advance of Tuesday's release of his 957-page memoir, "My Life."

Clinton said he regrets he wasn't able to persuade the Israelis and Palestinians to make peace and that he "didn't succeed in getting Osama bin Laden."

Clinton

On the Middle East, Clinton placed the blame for the collapse of his efforts to broker a peace deal squarely on the shoulders of Yasser Arafat. The Palestinian leader refused to accept formulas for peace offered by Clinton in late 2000.

"This was an error of historic proportions," Clinton said.

The former president says his worst day in the White House came when he had to tell his wife, Hillary, about his affair with Monica Lewinsky. "I had a sleepless night and woke her up and sat down on the side of the bed and just told her," he said. "It was awful."

In an interview with Der Spiegel newsweekly released earlier Sunday, Clinton also said that it will take at least five years before Iraq becomes a stable and secure country. He said the planned transfer of power to Iraqis on June 30 would most likely fail to stop violence in Iraq. (AP)

Al Qaeda-Iraq Ties Not Seen as Strong

WASHINGTON | The chairman of the Sept. 11 commission said Sunday that al Qaeda had much more interaction with Iran and Pakistan than it did with Iraq, underscoring a controversy over the Bush administration's insistence there was collaboration between the terrorist network and Saddam Hussein.

Thomas Kean made the comment even as he and other commissioners tried to steer clear of the debate over one of the administration's primary justifications for invading Iraq.

"We believe ... that there were a lot more active contacts, frankly, with Iran and with Pakistan than there were with Iraq," said Kean, a former Republican governor of New Jersey, on ABC television's "This Week."

One commissioner, Republican John Lehman, came to the defense of Vice President Dick Cheney, who is the most aggressive promoter of the idea that there were strong Iraqi ties to al Qaeda.

Lehman said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that new intelligence "we are now in the process of getting" indicates one of Saddam's Fedayeen fighters, a lieutenant colonel, was a prominent al Qaeda member.

Muslims brace for possible backlash in wake of Johnson death

EAGLESWOOD TOWNSHIP, N.J. | Backlash over the beheading of a U.S. contractor in Saudi Arabia was as clear as a sign in the town where he was born.

"Stamp out Islam," read a cardboard sign that also depicted a hand-drawn boot over a crescent and star. Phil Galasso posted it on a utility pole near his house in Eagleswood Township.

"I'm getting a little fed up with the mindless violence against civilians who had nothing to do with the war in the Middle East," Galasso said Sunday. He called Islam a "vile, bigoted faith" that subjugates women and uses force to spread its message.

Authorities had not received any reports of violence against the area's small Muslim population since Paul M. Johnson Jr. was killed by Muslim extremists Friday, but anger in the community was evident, not just over just the terrorists but also their religion.

About 100 miles north of Eagleswood Township in Paterson, about 25 people gathered Saturday at a rally where Arabs and Muslims condemned Johnson's killing.

Aref Assaf, president of the New Jersey chapter of the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee, said Sunday that his organization had not heard of any anti-Muslim or anti-Arab violence, but it has issued an advisory to its members asking them to be vigilant.

A minister at a local church was among those urging tolerance Sunday.

Pastor Gene Huber noted Johnson's family's grief and struggle in the face of cruelty, but said turning to faith would "enable them to become champions of grace in a world of wickedness."

Survey Finds Rise in Charitable Giving

Helped by an improving economy, charitable giving in the United States last year rose by the highest rate in three years, according to a national survey released Monday.

The Giving USA annual report said donations by individuals, estates, foundations and corporations totaled $240.7 billion in 2003. Researched by the Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University, the survey showed a 2.8 percent increase over 2002, when giving amounted to $234.1 billion.

Adjusted for inflation, donations rose only 0.5 percent in 2003, hovering at about the same rate of growth of 0.6 percent in 2002.

Of the 1,369 organizations that responded to the Giving USA survey, 55 percent reported an increase in donations, while 8 percent reported stable levels of giving and 37 reported a decline in 2003.

While donations from individuals, estates, and corporations increased, gifts from foundations fell slightly. Individual contributions, which comprised 74.5 percent of total giving, rose 2.5 percent to $179.4 billion, up from just over $175 billion in 2002. (AP)

Rescued Hikers Must Foot the Bill

Officials try to recover expenses from people saved in the wilderness

SALT LAKE CITY | Search-and-rescue missions in Utah's rugged back-country don't come cheap.

For years, lost hikers and wayward rafters have sometimes had to foot the bill when rescuers pluck them out of the wilderness. Problem is, many of them don't pay.

As the number of rescues has risen along with tourism, local officials have struggled to find ways to fund the missions. Now Grand County, Utah, is turning collection agencies on those who fail to foot the bill.

"We had to do something," said Kent Green, a sergeant with the sheriff's department in Grand County, where it costs $245 just to send rescue crews out the door.

Utah is not the only place where lost hikers can be billed for rescues.

Grand County Sheriff Sgt. Kent Green shows some of the equipment he uses during rescue missions in Moab, Utah.

Several states, including Idaho, Hawaii and New Hampshire, allow counties to issue bills.

The National Park Service does not currently bill for rescues. The agency spent $3 million on rescue costs last year. CHRISTIE L. HILL (AP)

Bloggers Set Sights on Political Conventions

Democrats offer web diarists chance for access

NEW YORK | A handful of scribes publishing in a newer medium will join the thousands of newspaper, magazine and broadcast journalists at this summer's political conventions. They'll be blogging.

The Democrats are holding true to their "party of inclusion" billing vis-a-vis the online chroniclers, whose Web logs have leapt in popularity this year as political junkies increasingly get their fix with mouse clicks.

Democrats say they'll offer media credentials to a handful of bloggers. The Republicans say they've yet to decide what to do about them — credentialing deadlines passed with no announcement on whether bloggers could even apply.

Iraqi Leaders to Step Up Security

Military will regroup to better ward off attacks from militants

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraq's interim prime minister announced a restructuring of the country's security forces Sunday, grouping all Iraqi troops under a central command whose chief duty is tackling insurgents plaguing the country.

Prime Minister Iyad Allawi also said his government was considering imposing "martial law" in Iraq's trouble spots to help police and paramilitaries bring order.

He made a plea for more international help in Iraq's guerrilla war, asking outside countries to send troops and donate military hardware to bolster Iraq's beleaguered forces.

"Until our forces are fully capable we will continue to need support from our friends," Allawi told reporters.

Allawi has made security his top priority, with violence persisting as his government prepares to take sovereignty from Iraq's American occupiers on June 30.

The incoming government is considering an amnesty for Iraqi guerrillas who haven't taken direct roles in killings of U.S.-led occupation forces or Iraqis, Interior Minister Falah Hassan al-Naqib told reporters, offering few details.

The security plan announced by Allawi focused on a strengthening of the Iraqi military, bolstering its role in fighting the insurgency. U.S. administrators had envisaged the military as a small force, meant solely to deal with external threats rather than violence within Iraq's borders. JIM KRANE (AP)

Nigerians Salute Fallen Islamic Empire

Sokoto caliphate ruled a swath of West Africa during the 19th century

SOKOTO, NIGERIA | Saluted by sword-waving Muslim warriors on horses and camels, African presidents and emirs on Sunday celebrated the 200th anniversary of a holy war that launched the sub-Saharan's greatest Islamic empire and urged an end to rising Christian-Muslim violence that has killed thousands here.

Appeals for peace — evoking six years of fiery religious rampages by machete-waving mobs in Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation — overlaid a day of musket-blasting pageantry in Sokoto, capital of the 19th-century Sokoto caliphate, or kingdom.

President Olusegun Obasanjo, a Christian from the south, condemned culprits of both faiths for the rising bloodshed in the nation's modern day holy wars.

Obasanjo's 1999 election, ending 15 years of repressive junta rule, unleashed religious, ethnic and political turmoil that since has claimed more than 10,000 lives in Nigeria.

Explosions of Muslim-Christian violence have killed hundreds this year alone — most recently last month in Adamawa state, where dozens died in clashes over the height of a mosque's minarets next to the palace of a Christian tribal chief.

Sokoto, in Nigeria's north, stood until British colonial rule as the center of a Muslim kingdom that spanned parts of six modern African nations — Nigeria, Cameroon, Togo, Benin, Niger and Burkina Faso.

Itinerant preacher Shehu Usman dan Fodio had catapulted the kingdom into being with a 1804-1808 holy war launched against infidels and wayward Muslims.

Sokoto today is part of 12 predominantly Muslim states that have adopted strict Islamic Shariah laws since 2000. GLENN MCKENZIE (AP)

Philippines' Arroyo Re-Elected Despite Vote Fraud Claims

MANILA, PHILIPPINES | President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo won another term in office, according to a final election count announced Sunday. But the opposition, which has warned of a possible "people power" revolt, said its claims of electoral fraud were ignored and vowed to keep fighting.

The announcement of the tally from the May 10 election followed a bitter six-week vote count by a committee of lawmakers.

"People power" revolts ousted dictator Ferdinand Marcos in 1986 and President Joseph Estrada in 2001. Arroyo took over midway through Estrada's six-year term and was seeking an electoral mandate to continue economic and other reforms in the poor Southeast Asian nation that is one of Washington's closest allies. India, Pakistan Plan Nuke Hotline

Communication link another step toward normalized relations

NEW DELHI | India and Pakistan will establish a nuclear hot line to reduce the risk of war, and the South Asian rivals Sunday reaffirmed their commitments to an atomic testing moratorium — steps forward in efforts to normalize relations.

Pakistan said it hopes the nuclear talks and other avenues of dialogue lead to a summit between Pakistani President Gen. Pervez Musharraf and India's new prime minister, Manmohan Singh.

Reconciliation efforts launched between Pakistan and India under Singh's predecessor, Atal Bihari Vajpayee, are continuing under India's new government, Pakistani officials said. In a joint statement at the conclusion of two days of talks in the Indian capital, officials said the dedicated secure hot line between the countries' foreign secretaries was intended to "prevent misunderstandings and reduce risks relevant to nuclear issues."

An existing hot line between directors-general of military operations in both countries also will be upgraded and secured.

The countries, which have fought three wars since independence from Britain in 1947, also reaffirmed their moratorium on conducting further nuclear tests "unless, in exercise of national sovereignty, it decides that extraordinary events have jeopardized its supreme interests." NEELESH MISRA (AP)

Bad air out. Renewable energy in.

Clean air clears the way for summer fun! D.C. can clean the air by making the switch to renewable energy.

It's a slam dunk.

Clean energy will:

Reduce Code Purple and Red Days:

During these days, air quality exceeds EPA's health-based standards, making it unsafe to enjoy the outdoors.

Improve the Health of District Residents:

Clean energy cleans our air and protects our health, especially that of young children and the elderly. Particles from power plants send over 3,700 people to the emergency room each year and are responsible for almost 20,000 asthma attacks in the D.C. metropolitan area each year.*

Reduce Energy Bills: Renewable energy is both feasible and affordable. It moves us towards decreased reliance on foreign fossil fuels and would help stabilize spiking natural gas prices.

Create Jobs: Clean energy production is more labor intensive than traditional energy production. Wind and solar power each provide 40 percent more jobs per dollar than does coal.

VRE Riders Face Fare Increases

Passengers complain about long delays and large crowds on trains

FREDERICKSBURG, VA. | Fares are going up next week on the Virginia Railway Express, adding to the complaints of Fredericksburg-area commuters already weary of crowded trains and heat-related delays.

The average VRE rider in the Fredericksburg area is like Cecilia Kirkman: Her monthly ticket to get to and from work is $200, and her daily round-trip commute is 3 1/2 hours.

"It seems like it's gotten much worse in the past year, with more delays and much more crowding," said Kirkman, who rides VRE between Brooke Station in Stafford and L'Enfant Plaza.

Depending on how far a passenger rides, tickets will cost 4 percent to 11 percent more. In addition, the fare change ends a deal that allowed VRE ticket holders to board Amtrak trains free. Starting June 28, riders must pay $1 to board Amtrak — which is faster and offers more comfortable coaches than VRE does, though it arrives late much more often.

With ridership ballooning beyond capacity, the VRE experience is now more crowded: At rush hour, hundreds of passengers must stand.

VRE and officials who support it are trying to assuage riders' discontent. They held a town hall meeting Wednesday in Stafford and promised that single-level rail cars will soon be replaced with double-deckers with more seats. (AP)

Sisters Jade and Erin Buckles before being separated at Children's Hospital.

Formerly Conjoined Twins Recovering

WASHINGTON | Children's Hospital reported on Sunday that two formerly conjoined twin sisters from Virginia were still in critical condition a day after the four-month-old babies were separated.

Hospital officials said Jade and Erin Buckles of Woodbridge were parted in surgery on Saturday. They face a recovery ranging from a few weeks to a few months, depending on complications.

The girls were born Feb. 26 at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md. They shared a liver and one of the babies' hearts rested horizontally, protruding into the other girl's chest cavity. (AP)

? SINCE YOU ASKED

Q Once Metro implements its non-cash policy for parking fees, how will commuters exit parking lots if their SmarTrip card is deactivated?

A If your SmarTrip card malfunctions after the new policy goes into effect Monday, June 28, Metro says customers should go to the station to buy a new SmarTrip card or a paper farecard with enough value to cover the cost of parking. Then give the new card to a parking attendant who will let you out.

Attendants won't be making change, so you'll want to get the value on the new card as close as possible to the actual parking fee.

You can report a damaged card by calling 1-888-SmarTrip (TTY 703-620-8782). DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

Va. Teacher Hospitalized With Viral Meningitis

RESTON, VA. | Fairfax County health officials reported another case of viral meningitis on Sunday.

A teacher at Armstrong Elementary school in Reston is hospitalized with the illness.

County health department spokeswoman Kimberly Cordero told WTOP Radio it's not clear if it's the same type of meningitis that killed a 16-year-old Chantilly High School student last week. Her classmate also remains in the hospital with symptoms similar to viral meningitis.

There's no apparent link between the three cases.

Meanwhile, a 12-year-old student at Franklin Middle School — also in the Chantilly area — died suddenly at his home. Cause of death hasn't been determined yet. (AP)

The Right Lights

ILLUMINATION | George Tobia's lighting epiphany came 13 years ago when, sitting in his office as the setting sun cast a rosy glow, it occurred to him to turn off the 12 fluorescent bulbs over his head. Suddenly awash in natural light, he said to himself, "This feels so good."

That's when the Boston lawyer decided he had to do something about his office lights. Two floor lamps, two desk lamps and two table lamps later, Tobia enters his office each morning and ceremoniously extinguishes the overhead fluorescent lights that his assistant has carefully turned on a short time before.

The fax machine may be maddening and the computer may promote hostility, but no office gear can put you in a funk as quickly as fluorescent lighting. At best, it provides the light of a cloudy sky. At worst, it's the source of physical maladies, and a creepy and synthetic downer. Commercial builders love fluorescent lights because they're so efficient. They run on about a quarter of the electricity that incandescent bulbs require, and they last roughly 10 times as long. The problem is, most office workers end up getting a lot more fluorescent light than they need, pretty much canceling out that efficiency.

Not surprisingly, Douglas Mahone, an energy-efficiency consultant with Heschong Mahone Group, has found that workers perform better when exposed to natural light.

And while Mahone cautions not to forget the advances made in fluorescent lighting, he concedes that he doesn't use it himself. "I'm in a daylight office with nice views," he says, "and I leave my lights turned off all the time." JARED SANDBERG

LIVE ONLINE

Life at Work

Washington Post columnist AMY JOYCE appears online every Tuesday to offer advice about managing interpersonal issues on the job.

As the weather heats up, the line between appropriate office wear and beachwear gets crossed on a daily basis. The flip-flops, shorts, and wrinkled clothing drive me nuts. Would it be appropriate for me to ask the executive director to suggest some guidelines?

It is that time of year again, isn't it? Don't tell the executive director to make a statement, but go ahead and ask if something should be done. Explain it this way: You're afraid clients might be a little turned off by the slap-slap-slapping of the flip-flops and inappropriate dress. Casual is nice, beachwear is a little weird.

Yesterday I had my performance review. As usual they sang my praises, and provided no constructive criticism or tangible goals. What can I do to change the culture of reviews?

Seems like your performance review time is the perfect time to tell them what your goals are and ask what their take on your career there is. Review time isn't just a time to sit back and listen to what your boss has to say. It's also time for you to speak up, question things and listen to what they have to say. Do it now. Ask for a post-mortem review meeting.

Networks of painters give students more than pocket change

SUMMER JOBS | When Dave Ecklund took his first summer painting job two years ago, it beat working in the sawmill back home. This summer, Ecklund is running his own Tuition Painters franchise, with a goal of earning enough to pay his tuition at Penn State.

Thousands of college students will work as painters this summer, many employed by fellow students like Ecklund, franchise managers for corporations that have turned student paint crews into an institution.

"Last summer, I ran a company with 13 people and did $137,000 worth of work. We painted around 86 homes last year," said Ecklund, who's six months away from graduation. "It might be the most impressive thing on my resume."

From coast to coast and into

EVEN STROKES: Jay Reinhardt of Tuition Painters works under a deck in State College, Pa. — one of thousands of students to join a painting company this summer.

Canada, if there's a college nearby, there's probably a painting franchise. There are some differences, but all work essentially the same way: In the fall, they recruit a student in each market to be the franchise manager. Over the winter, that manager learns the ins and outs of the business, from paint chemistry and technology to developing a marketing plan.

During the spring and summer, each manager is responsible for hiring a crew, purchasing supplies and scheduling and performing each job.

Ecklund, who's majoring in management, information systems and international business, said the experience would help him open his own business when he graduates.

500 and Counting For Griffey

BASEBALL | Ken Griffey Jr. trotted around the bases as if it were just another home run. It was anything but that.

Griffey hit a 2-2 pitch from Matt Morris into the right-field stands to lead off the sixth inning Sunday, securing a spot in the record books as the 20th player with 500 homers.

The star center fielder ended a frustrating stretch with the swing, which helped the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0. At 34, he became the sixth-youngest player to reach the milestone.

Griffey, who had been stuck on No. 499 for a week, took a few extra seconds to watch his drive fly into the seats, then dropped his bat and slowly trotted around the bases with his 19th homer of the season.

Three other active players have hit 500 homers. Barry Bonds has 676, Sammy Sosa has 549 and Rafael Palmeiro has 538.

ROUGH PATCH: Retief Goosen blasts out of the rough on the third hole en route to capturing the U.S. Open title on Sunday.

Goosen's Second Helpings

3-putt on 17th dooms Mickelson at U.S. Open

U.S. OPEN | Retief Goosen didn't get the cheers, just the U.S. Open trophy.

In a sterling display of clutch putting and great escapes, Goosen captured his second U.S. Open in four years Sunday at Shinnecock Hills by one-putting the final six greens and letting Phil Mickelson self-destruct.

In the toughest final round at the U.S. Open in 32 years, Goosen closed with a 1-over 71 for a two-shot victory made possible when Mickelson three-putted from 5 feet on the 17th just as the raucous New York gallery was ready to send him off in pursuit of the Grand Slam.

Instead, it was Goosen who picked up his second major, along with validation as a tough customer under the most stifling pressure.

Mickelson, who won the Masters for his first major by shooting 31 on the back nine at Augusta National, looked like he might bring Shinnecock to its knees with awesome control and three birdies over a four-hole stretch that gave him his first lead of the day. But it wasn't to be.

"I fought hard all day," Mickelson said. "I played some of the best golf I ever played." DOUG FERGUSON (AP)

BY THE NUMBERS: Manager Lou Piniella moved past Miller Huggins to become 20th in all-time wins with 1,414 victories after Robert Fick — a late addition to the Tampa Bay lineup — tripled in the eventual winning run in the Devil Rays' 11th straight win, 2-1 over the Arizona Diamondbacks on Sunday. The Devil Rays are a major league-best 11-1 during interleague play. (AP)

U.S. Moves to Next World Cup Qualifying Round

SOCCER | The United States advanced to the semifinal round in CONCACAF World Cup qualifying Sunday after beating Grenada 3-2 and 6-2 on aggregate.

Landon Donovan, Josh Wolff and DaMarcus Beasley scored for the Americans. The U.S. scored first in the seventh minute when Wolff intercepted the ball and fed Claudio Reyna, who set up Donovan.

In the 23rd minute, Wolff scored off a scramble following a corner kick to give the U.S. the lead for good after Grenada had scored. (AP)

Kerr Denies 17-Year-Old To Win ShopRite Classic

Cristie Kerr hit an 8-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Sunday to win the ShopRite LPGA Classic, spoiling 17-year-old Paula Creamer's bid to make history. With the tournament on the line, Kerr calmly made the putt to finish with a 3-under 68. The shot came after playing partner Creamer missed a 10-footer that would have sent them to a playoff hole. Creamer (69) and Giulia Sergas (71) finished one shot back at 203, followed by Juli Inkster (67) and Mi Hyun Kim (69) at 204. (AP)

Cubs' Hot Streak Continues

Moises Alou hit a two-run homer and Carlos Zambrano won his fourth straight decision, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 win over the Oakland Athletics on Sunday. Zambrano (8-2) outpitched Oakland starter Barry Zito, giving up one run on five hits and striking out eight in 6 2/3 innings. The Cubs took two of three from Oakland in the first regular-season meeting between the clubs. Chicago has won eight of nine to move two games behind first-place St. Louis in the NL Central. (AP)

Schmidt Throws One-Hitter

Jason Schmidt pitched a one-hitter to win his ninth straight decision and Edgardo Alfonzo hit a grand slam, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 4-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox on Sunday. Schmidt (9-2) was overpowering in throwing 133 pitches, not allowing a hit until Kevin Youkilis' double in the sixth inning. He struck out nine and walked two in his 15th career shut-out — and second one-hitter this season. (AP)

Mystics Battle Back, But Lose to Sun

WNBA | Taj McWilliams-Franklin had 19 points and eight rebounds to lead the Connecticut Sun to a 75-65 win over the Washington Mystics on Sunday.

Katie Douglas added 18 points for Connecticut, which snapped a two-game losing streak. The Sun never trailed in the game and countered every rally with a strong inside game. Connecticut outscored Washington 34-20 in the paint and finished with a 37-32 edge on the boards.

Chamique Holdscrow led Washington with 20 points, getting 12 from the foul line.

The Sun led by as many as 17 in the first half. Washington battled back from the perimeter in the second half. Stacey Dales-

Schuman, who finished with 17 points, hit four 3s in the second half to help the Mystics close the gap.

Holdscrow hit a pair of free throws with 8:47 left, and Washington got to 56-52 but would get no closer. Douglas countered with a 3-pointer, and the Sun began to pull away.

A Grand Victory For Roberts, O's

BASEBALL | Brian Roberts hit a grand slam with two outs in the ninth inning, helping the Baltimore Orioles end a seven-game losing streak with a 4-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies on Sunday.

Colorado headed into the ninth ahead 2-0 behind seven strong innings from Joe Kennedy, but Shawn Chacon (0-5) walked two with one out and another with two outs before Roberts lifted his third career grand slam over the wall in right to snap Baltimore's seven-game losing streak.

It was the sixth blown save and fourth in seven appearances for Chacon.

Venus, Serena Get a Life

Williams sisters enter Wimbledon trying to recapture past glory

WIMBLEDON | So much has changed for Serena and Venus Williams since they were last at the All England Club.

A year ago, Serena beat her older sister to win a second straight Wimbledon, the fifth time in six majors they met for the championship. They owned 10 Grand Slam titles and had swapped the No. 1 ranking.

These days, the siblings are working to get their games in gear, their bodies healthy and their minds at peace. Last month, they lost in the French Open quarterfinals on the same day.

"We both basically tried to commit suicide there," Serena said, apparently referring to how poorly they played in Paris. "But we had to get over it quickly."

Take away all-in-the-family matches, and the sisters are 46-1 at Wimbledon since 2000.

Venus reached four straight finals here, winning in 2000-01, while Serena can become only the third woman in the past 35 years (joining Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova) to win three consecutive Wimbledons.

But it's been a tough 12 months trying to deal with the death of a sister, injuries and the demands of tennis with other interests.

Serena offered an insight into their mind-sets when a reporter wondered what advice she'd give top-ranked Justine Henin-Hardenne and No. 2 Kim Clijsters, who are sidelined. "Enjoy the time off," she answered. "Go out, live a little." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Lakers Eye Rudy T. as New Coach

PRO BASKETBALL | Still with little idea of just how much rebuilding will have to be done, Laker General Manager Mitch Kupchak has invited former Houston Rocket Coach Rudy Tomjanovich to Los Angeles to interview for the head coach job.

They are expected to meet early this week. If Owner Jerry Buss is to be involved, the meeting would have to take place before Wednesday, when Buss is scheduled to fly to Italy.

Buss let Phil Jackson go Friday evening and by Saturday morning the organization had a working list of replacements, Tomjanovich, George Karl and Pat Riley, among others, added to in-house candidates Kurt Rambis and Jim Cleamons.

Riley issued a statement Saturday in which he said he probably would not be interested and revealed he was in negotiations to extend his presidency of the Miami Heat.

Kupchak apparently started the search with Tomjanovich, by some accounts, during a pre-draft camp last week in Chicago. Since then, Shaquille O'Neal has demanded a trade and Kobe Bryant has opted out of his contract, as has Karl Malone, as could Gary Payton and Derek Fisher. TIM BROWN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Newman Earns First Victory of Year

AUTO RACING | Ryan Newman finally got his first victory of 2004, making up a lost lap to win Sunday at Michigan International Speedway.

Newman led NASCAR's Nextel Cup series with eight victories a year ago, but had not finished better than third this season before winning the DHL 400 — the 15th race of the year.

It didn't look like this was going to be Newman's day either, after the radiator on the front of his Penske Racing South Dodge became blocked by trash early in the race.

The engine overheated, forcing Newman to make a green flag pit stop on the 22nd of 200 laps.

Newman, who won at the Michigan speedway last August, became the first driver to win back-to-back races at MIS since Mark Martin in August 1997 and June 1998. It was the 10th victory of his Cup career. (AP)

NEVER ARGUE WHILE HOLDING A SCALPEL: It's touch-and-go on "Nip/Tuck" as Sean and Troy engage in some back-and-forth.

Exposed Nerve

CUTTING-EDGE TV | The two men in crimson scrubs and rubber gloves are having a squabble.

"I'll run lead, you'll assist," proclaims Dr. Sean McNamara.

"No, there's media. I'm co-lead ... I'll be stepping up with you to any microphones," Dr. Christian Troy snaps back.

"You want to take this outside," snarls an enraged McNamara.

"Love to," sneers Troy.

Behind them on an operating table lie comatose conjoined twins, surrounded by a team of doctors appalled by the plastic surgeons' untimely bickering.

"Nip/Tuck" is back, and more outrageous than ever. The FX series about the two ethically challenged surgeons, portrayed by Dylan Walsh as McNamara and Julian McMahon as Troy, returns Tuesday at 10 p.m.

Creator Ryan Murphy says this season will be "more emotional," the surgeries "more expensive" and the guest stars "higher profile." Vanessa Redgrave appears in the premiere episode playing the mother of McNamara's estranged wife, played by Redgrave's daughter, Joely Richardson.

"Our show is a tone piece. It's pushing the envelope and yet walking a line of drama that I think is very responsible," said Murphy. "People have said — and I agree — that every one of our episodes feels like a little independent movie."

Although the series takes dramatic license, technical adviser Linda Klein, a registered nurse, is meticulous that the operations look authentic.

For this episode, she consulted Dr. James Bradley, associate professor of plastic surgery at UCLA Medical Center and part of the team that separated the conjoined Alvarez twins of Guatemala in 2002.

"They seem to usually have bizarre surroundings to the surgeries, but the surgeries for the most part are accurate," said Bradley. "The technical aspect is thought out well, based in fact and reality."

"Nip/Tuck" doesn't make cosmetic surgery look as neat and nifty as the show's title suggests.

Klein, who uses steak to simulate muscle during the fake operations, said, "Ryan likes to be as graphic as possible."

When providing the blood and guts, she keeps in mind her startled reaction to first witnessing a face lift "when they peel the skin off the muscle and actually hold someone's face away from their body."

But, Murphy says "Nip/Tuck" episodes "are like a Grimm's fairy tale. There's always a moral, order is always restored, and the running theme is be careful what you wish for." BRIDGET BYRNE (AP)

Feeling Blues: Eric Clapton

You whippersnappers only know Eric Clapton as the singer of "Layla," which became a yoooge hit in the early '90s. But Old Slowhand is famous for much more than that. There was his 1972 hit ... um, "Layla," but more importantly, he did time in every white-guy blues band of note from John Mayall and the Bluesbreakers to The Yardbirds to Cream. See the master guitarist work it out, blues-rock-style, at a performance for all ages.

Even past his Stairmaster peak, Clapton rocks the guitar and the suit.

They Love N.Y.

MUSIC | The Beastie Boys' new album, "To The 5 Boroughs" (Capitol) is a return to the classic hip-hop style not heard on a Beastie's release since 1989's "Paul's Boutique."

Gone are the prog instrumentals, the two-minute thrash anthems, the sabotaged '70s-hard rock. Recorded entirely on a computer, "5 Boroughs" is an ode to Gotham and the East Coast hip-hop groups of the early '80s, complete with passing mics, juvenile rhymes, rubbery basslines, scratching records and stomping beats.

Anything goes when Ad-Rock,

MCA and Mike D rhyme in tandem and it often comes off like a free-style at a rec center. Though they touch on weighty subjects like politics on "Time to Build" ("We got a president we didn't elect/The Kyoto Treaty he decided to neglect"), there are inside jokes that range from basketball to food.

The choice samples (EPMD, Big Daddy Kane) evoke hip-hop's past with choruses cribbed directly from earlier joints. Their punk roots show up when they take the guitar riff from New York punk band The Dead Boys' "Sonic Reducer" for "An

KEEPING IT REAL: The Beasties send a love letter, old-school style, to New York.

Open Letter to NYC."

That song is a highlight, along with Ad-Rock slipping into fake foreign accents and Mike D's declaration of "You heard me like I was E.F. Hutton."

On "Three the Hard Way,"

MCA dissas a perpetrator by snarling, "Your rhyme technique/ it is antique." But it could have easily been a boast about his own crew's flow, as they seem to become even more real with age. JAKE

It's All in the Name

UP-AND-COMING | At a time when Nashville's Music Row is being accused of playing it safe, Warner Bros. has gone out on a limb with a different kind of country act, the duo Big & Rich.

As the name implies, this act doesn't take itself too seriously. Perhaps as a result, Big & Rich's debut album, "Horse of a Different Color," is arguably the most interesting project to come out of Music City so far this year.

Calling the Big & Rich style "music without prejudice," the duo's Big Kenny explained that stylistically, "it's all-inclusive," incorporating elements of hip-hop, rock and other genres.

Big Kenny's partner is John Rich. Both have paid their dues in the industry. When they first met, Kenny said, "I was a rock 'n' roll guy writing country songs. John was a country artist writing rock 'n' roll songs."

Together, he said, "we're as country as they come, and [we] love this format. But we like to bring other elements in as much as possible, where they work and feel good to us."

The process of making their debut album, Rich explained, "was very free-form. There were

A LITTLE BIT COUNTRY: Hoping to become a self-fulfilling prophecy, Big Kenny and John Rich called themselves Big & Rich, and Nashville seems happy to oblige.

no contrived ideas."

Kenny added: "We were given 100 percent artistic freedom. The only constraints on the album were the limits we put on ourselves."

Big & Rich are among the founders of the Muzik Mafia, a mutually supportive clique of Nashville performers whose low-key Tuesday-night gigs have turned into a headline-grabbing musical movement that has already spawned deals for Epic's Gretchen Wilson and Mercury's James Otto.

Longtime fans Martina McBride and Wilson make guest appearances on the album, and Wilson appears in the "Save a Horse" video.

McBride played their music for Tim McGraw, who booked the duo to open his summer tour. Big & Rich are grateful for the opportunity.

"We haven't had the giant hit yet," Rich said. "Our album just came out. We don't have the stats to be on that [tour]. Tim is just stepping out and [taking a chance on us]."

As a result, the duo expect to play for more than 800,000 potential new fans this summer. PHYLIS STARK (BILLBOARD)

Viacom Eyes Former MTV Head

CORPORATE SHIFTS | As chairman of MTV Networks, Tom Freston's unorthodox style has produced profound results: MTV Networks' channels — MTV, Nickelodeon, Spike TV, Comedy Central and others — have turned out irreverent hits including "South Park," "SpongeBob SquarePants" and "The Osbournes." Now, Freston is being pressed for an encore that could change the face of its parent, Viacom Inc. He recently was handpicked by Viacom chairman and chief executive Sumner Redstone to reverse a cold streak at Paramount Pictures. Should Freston succeed, he might star in a bigger role: filling Redstone's shoes as head of the third-largest media company when the 81-year-old steps down. (AP)

Talking it Through

SPORTS CHATTER | Champion triathlete Siri Lindley was being interviewed by NBC Olympics honcho David Neal for an announcing job when she casually mentioned coaching field hockey at Princeton a decade ago. Neal's eyes widened.

Her cell phone rang before she even reached her hotel after the interview. Lindley now had two jobs — NBC's Olympics commentator for the triathlon and field hockey.

NBC's plan to broadcast 1,210 hours of the Olympics over six networks this summer left its executives with a problem: Where do you find somebody who can talk skillfully and colorfully about badminton? Or handball? Or tae kwon do?

The answers came from some unlikely people. Like Pat Croce, former president of the Philadelphia 76ers, and basketball studio analyst for NBC. Croce is a black belt in tae kwon do; Neal remembered and sought him out.

Or Bill Clement. One hockey announcer told Neal that he had been a badminton champion growing up in Canada. Another problem solved.

NBC will have 99 on-air announcers at the Summer Olympics in Athens, and 51 of these will be working at the Summer Olympics for the first time. And with NBC telecasting more hours than the last five Summer Games combined, they'll have plenty of on-the-job training.

Former athletes who still keep up-to-date with their sports had a big advantage. Neal liked Lindley's tapes, added to which the field-hockey gig helps out NBC, which otherwise would have to pay her way to Athens for a couple of days of work.

Lindley shrugs off the extra work: "After having been a triathlete and as hard as you have to work to do that, if I'm not working hard at something, I'm not happy," she said. Right now, she's worried about correctly pronouncing the names of the players in a sport where many of the teams are from Pakistan and Japan. And she has problems closer to home: "I wish I could pronounce his name," she said of her broadcasting partner.

He's Spero Dedes. (That's spear-oh dee-dis.) DAVID BAUDER (AP)

WINNING WAYS: Lindley now has two announcing jobs at the Summer Olympics.

God-Given Talent

REALITY TV | The management company that represents Britney Spears and 'N Sync is searching for a truly divine voice.

"Gifted," a Christian version of the popular "American Idol" TV show, is scheduled to debut in October on Trinity Broadcasting Network, the Costa Mesa, California-based conglomerate that features such well-known evangelists as Benny Hinn.

The Wright Entertainment Group is part of a joint venture with Matt Crouch, son of the founders of Trinity Broadcasting, to create the talent-search show, Wright spokesman Philip McIntyre said.

McIntyre said the joint venture, called Wright Generation, is negotiating with a private investor to finance the project.

Who will be the next Michael English?

"It is our goal to wrap God's message — His love — in acceptance, and in a way that blends seamlessly into 'pop' culture while still upholding the values we, as Christians, value most," Wright Generation's mission statement reads.

A cross-country summer bus tour to 11 Trinity stations is planned, where auditions will be held for solo singers, ages 18-24. The tour, scheduled to begin July 26, will stop in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Illinois, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New York, California and Washington state. Contestants will perform gospel or contemporary songs.

Two finalists will be chosen at each stop. The 24 finalists will be flown to Hollywood, where they will perform before a live studio audience and be evaluated by celebrity judges.

Eight will go on to the finals, where the television audience will choose the winner, whose career will be managed by Wright and Crouch. (AP)

Mean Streets

DOCU/DRAMA | "NYPD 24/7" opens with a call about a suicide in a Manhattan subway station, where the body lies along the tracks below the station platform.

Detective Steve DiSchiavi has seen it all in his career, but sometimes there's a twist. Like this time: This guy had wanted to be killed by the train, but when it stopped short he went to Plan B and offed himself with the pistol he was carrying.

"Kinda like being a Boy Scout, I guess," said DiSchiavi. "Always being prepared."

Then a call comes in that a young woman has been stabbed in the lobby of her boyfriend's apartment building and clings uncertainly to life.

Bagging the assailant consumes DiSchiavi and fellow cops from the Manhattan South homicide squad as the winding, often frustrating case unfolds. By the end of this premiere of the ABC News documentary series, they have their man.

Airing at 10 p.m. Tuesday, the seven-episode "NYPD 24/7" occupies the usual time slot of "NYPD Blue" and, lest a viewer still fails to make the connection, Dennis Franz, star of the long-running cop drama, serves as narrator.

In the style of earlier ABC News miniseries "Hopkins 24/7" (an inside look at a hospital) and "Boston 24/7" (chronicling a year with a big-city mayor), "NYPD 24/7" shadows members of the New York's Homicide, Special Victims and Crime Scene units over a 16-month period.

"We see stuff that nobody should have to see," said DiSchiavi. Here's a chance for viewers to get a glimpse.

EX-BEATLES

McCartney Hits 3,000 Live Shows — After 47 Years

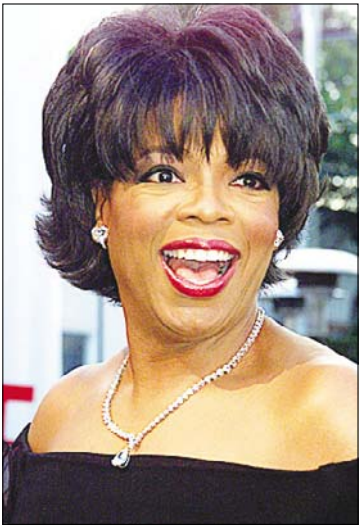

Some 50,000 fans lined up to tap their toes to SIR PAUL MCCARTNEY as he kicked off only his second-ever concert in Russia on Sunday. However, it's not that number that would make the mind boggle. Apparently, the gig was Sir Paul's 3,000th gig, a number he said in a statement he was "amazed" to reach. But consider this: McCartney began gigging with the Quarrymen, a Beatles precursor, in 1957. That's 47 years ago. During those years, nearly 17,200 days have passed — when he could have been playing live. Nobody's calling Sir Paul a wuss or anything. But the numbers speak for themselves. (EXPRESS)

"That's right," Sir Paul announced with glee, "3,000 shows. Beat that, Ringo!"

POWER

They Own You

Forbes Magazine has once again spoken wisdom for the ages: Celebrities are rich, mighty people. Topping its Celebrity 100 most-powerful list, fresh off his "The Passion of the Christ" tour, is ex-actor MEL GIBSON. Perennial power-grabbers Tiger Woods and OPRAH WINFREY round out the top three. And American Idol reject WILLIAM HUNG, surely on his 25th minute of fame, ranks at number 96. (EXPRESS)

Judge: Kim Is Lil' Flight Risk

A judge in New York blocked LIL' KIM from performing at a festival on the Caribbean island of St. Kitts on Friday. The rapper, whose real name is Kimberly Jones, had surrendered her passport in April after she was charged with lying to a grand jury about a 2001 shootout. Her lawyer argued that she was not a flight risk. "Tell that to Roman Polanski," the judge replied. "Just because you're a celebrity doesn't mean you don't jump bail and leave the country." (AP)

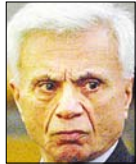

CRIME

Blake Loses Another Lawyer

Gerald Schwartzbach, ROBERT BLAKE's latest lawyer, told reporters in Los Angeles on Friday that it was "highly unlikely" he would be able to defend the actor on charges of murdering his wife by the Sept. 9 trial date.

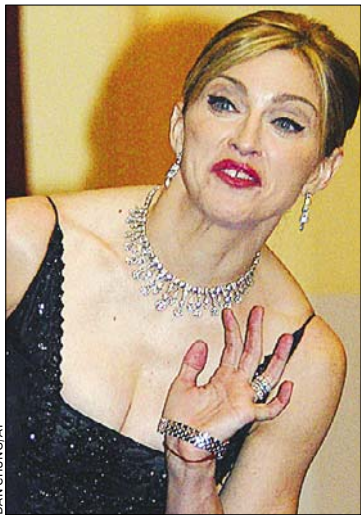

The Deputy District Attorney accused Blake of wanting to delay the trial to extend his freedom. Blake is out on $1.5 million bail but remains under house arrest. (AP)

HOMESTEADS

Not In Madonna's Back Yard

MADONNA won her bid Friday to stop walkers from traipsing over large parts of her $16 million English country estate. The singer's lawyers had argued before a public inquiry that a demand from the Countryside Agency to let ramblers onto areas regarded as open countryside would bring strangers close to her home, compromising her privacy and security. The inquiry ruled that the public has no right of access to 15 of 17 contested segments of land on the 1,354-acre estate, located on the border of Wiltshire and Dorset counties in southwest England. TO THE EDITOR

HOW IN THE WORLD do you publish Express every day when you constantly get complaints about what you print? It seems that no matter what you put on the front page, someone thinks it's either disgusting, inappropriate or just plain not what they think "we" should see first thing in the morning. Gee whiz, people even complain about the captions under some of the pictures on the People page because they're not respectful enough. (Frankly, I enjoy them. Keep it up.) Face it, people, stuff happens. It may not be pleasant or pleasing to the eye, but it's life.

LET'S TALK BUDGET DEFICIT ... like the one we're all going to have once we start paying Metro's higher fares ("Metro Hikes Pass Final Hurdle," June 18). It's the fault of us riders, because we didn't raise a big enough stink. I'm willing to accept that. I submitted comments online, but apparently I was one out of only about 400 to do so. Next year, when Metro wants to raise fares again, let's rally. We have to send a message to Metro somehow that we're unhappy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Are you trying to get in the way, or is it just happening by accident? Do your best to steer clear of someone else's business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Indecision is the only thing that can threaten your current position. Be sure that you keep up the momentum; keep moving forward.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Someone close to you knows that there's more going on beneath the surface than even you are willing to admit — yet. Soon it will all come out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You can find a bargain, and you're not going to want to let it pass you by. Can you talk someone else into spending with you?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You may have to fork over a little cash to have what you want on schedule. A little private negotiation may be called for during evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You're in the mood to show off a little, and you'll get the chance during afternoon hours. You can attract a large audience if you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You're used to being in the spotlight, but you may be more interested in pursuing more quiet, solitary interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It's time for a heart-to-heart talk, and don't back out when that special someone makes the first move. Be honest — and brave.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Take care that your dreams don't become so strong that you are unable to accept the responsibilities that reality presents.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — There is more to find fascinating many of those things that other people take for granted. Your perceptions are sure to change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You're likely to find fascinating many of those things that other people take for granted. Your perceptions are sure to change.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Your energy and charisma can open doors for you; what happens once you walk through those doors, however, may not be up to you.

LIVE ONLINE

Marion Barry

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Former Mayor MARION BARRY was online Friday to discuss his candidacy for the D.C. Council seat in Ward 8, baseball and other issues.

If you win, what's the first project you want accomplished in Ward 8?

I would probably introduce several bills regarding public education. Our schools are among the worst in the country even though we have some outstanding teachers and principals. Education is the key to liberation. Liberation from poverty. Liberation from ignorance.

Also, housing prices in D.C. have gone through the roof. The average salary for a residence in Ward 8 is $16,000 a year. If you consider that 1/3 of a salary goes for housing, this person cannot live in D.C., unless they find a chicken coop for $7,000. I would like to keep people in Washington from being forced out of their own neighborhoods.

Do you think the city should be using taxpayer money to try to bring a major league team here?

I worked awfully hard to keep the Redskins here. I don't think we need a baseball stadium in D.C. I like baseball ... but it is not a priority. The owners of many of these teams are sticking these cities up for $3 million or $4 million and these cities are so anxious to have a baseball team that they are paying the price.

Do you think the race will be close?

In 1992, I ran against the incumbent and received 75 percent of the vote. When I ran for mayor in 1994 I received 80 percent of the vote. If that is an indication of how strong I am, we are looking at anywhere between 65 and 75 percent. So ... no, it will not be close.

Why isn't there a greater push for D.C. statehood?

Everyone I know is fighting for statehood and we will continue to push until we achieve full self-government.
